

For Immediate Release

Casio Products wins iF Product Design Award 2013

Norderstedt, January 09, 2012 — CASIO Europe GmbH today announced that the V-R100 business support terminal is winner of the prestigious iF Product Design Award 2013.

product
design award

The iF design awards are organized by iF International Forum Design GmbH and are internationally recognized as a mark of excellence in industrial product design. Entries are carefully judged not only for their design features, but also for their quality, price, and environmental performance.

2013

Overview of the Award-Winning Casio Product

V-R100 Business Support Terminal

The V-R100 is an Android™ business support terminal equipped with a color main display with full touch-screen operation, a sub-display that is great for showing information to customers, and a thermal printer to generate receipts. The stylish and compact form fits in attractively in retail or office settings, and the drawer and main unit can be separated, offering excellent versatility whether used in retail or in a restaurant or office.